Every town has a place where time slows down. In ours, it was the library on Elm Street.

The vote was unanimous. The library stayed open, and the floors kept creaking.